

Mileena's Humanity

by Spirit.of.Bardock

Category: Mortal Kombat

Genre: Romance

Language: English

Characters: Mileena, OC

Pairings: Mileena/OC

Status: In-Progress

Published: 2016-04-16 00:15:41

Updated: 2016-04-19 01:11:49

Packaged: 2016-04-27 17:21:42

Rating: M

Chapters: 2

Words: 2,391

Publisher: www.fanfiction.net

Summary: This is an idea i've had rattling inside my head for awhile and thanks to MKXL i've decided to write this. Also the Mileena being used is the from MKX as that one actually has "lips" so to speak.

Pairing is OCxMileena

1. Chapter 1

*AN: This is an AU story where Mileena escapes from D'Vorah and manages to find a way to Earthrealm. Since I've been playing Mortal Kombat XL quite a bit, I will be focusing on this story for a while. Anyway hope you enjoy it.***

_(3__rd__ person POV)_

"Damned Kytinn bug, she injured me more than I thought.", The wounded empress said to herself.

After D'Vorah had managed to defeat Mileena, she blinded D'Vorah and escaped through a hidden portal. She knew this portal lead to Earthrealm, but she had no choice. After coming out the other side, the empress she saw it had lead her to a large field of grass. After taking in her surroundings the empress took off, trying to put as much distance between her and the portal as possible. Mileena knew she had to find some meat, for once it didn't matter if it was from a humanoid or not. The more her feet made contact with the grass, the more her wounds bled. She kept running until she saw a house on the top of a hill.

"A house, that means a human must live there. Which means a fresh meal for me.", Mileena mused to herself.

She sneaks her way up to the house, there wasn't much in there. It looked like fairly empty except for a cooking area and a relaxation area with the Earthrealm invention she believed was called a Television. She slowly made her way around the house, looking in all the windows to try to find the occupants. After going around completely she saw no one was inside, after letting out a growl she steps into the house. After making her way to the human cooking area, she looked in the cabinets to find some meat. However she was unable to find anything except boxes of dry wheat like substances.

"What kind of human doesn't eat meat, maybe the occupants already left. Damn it, that means I'm not going to be able to eat for today.", she said to herself, not noticing the figure behind her.

The figure knocked her in the back of the head with a metal bat, standing over her, he now checked to make sure she was still alive.

"You're stupid Justin, you don't just attack someone with out saying something.", the man said to himself as he looked at the woman he had hit.

His eyes widened as he saw the woman, she was bleeding all over and the new bump on the head wasn't going to help her. Justin picked up the woman and put her on the couch and went to the bathroom to get bandages and medicine. As he came back into the living room, the woman began to stir before rushing to her feet. She looked around and saw a human male standing there, eyes widened and sweat dripping from his forehead.

"Pathetic human, do you know who I am?", Mileena asked, trying to show confidence, but was still hurting.

"Well I know you're hurt, and you should let me help you" Justin said, his voice was already quivering.

Mileena narrowed her eyes, but sat down anyway, she knew she would need to be at her full strength in order to kill Kotal. For the moment she would let this lesser being tend to her, as it should be with every being. After Justin saw the woman relax, he made his way over to her and started to apply the disinfectant. This caused her to hiss, making him try to hurry up. After getting her bandaged up Justin put up the medicine with a sigh. He had been trying to keep his composure through the entire ordeal. Whoever this woman was, she is quite beautiful, almost royalty like. He looked back at her and decided it was time for some answers.

"So, what's your name?", He asked her, trying to act as a good (however forced) host.

"You may address me as Mileena, the Empress of Outworld.", Mileena said holding her head up high.

"Outworld? I think I heard about that on TV. Well anyway my name is Justin", Justin said as he introduced himself. Truth be told he was only 3 when Outworld tried to invade Earth. Now 25 years later, he had heard that earth was in trouble due to a place called Netherealm.

Mileena's stomach let out a growl, signaling that she was starving. Justin headed into the kitchen quickly and pulled some steaks out of the fridge. He put them on the stove, their juices coming out, only to sizzle against the hot surface. Hearing the sounds, Mileena stands and makes her way to the source of the sound. When she got into the kitchen, an amazing scent filled her nose.

"What is that smell, it's better than what I usually eat.", she said, her mouth on the edge of drooling.

Justin looks over at her confused, "It's just steak, I've been meaning to cook it."

Mileena made her way over to him, walking in a way to show off her hips. This action caused Justin to turn around and focus back on the food, his face becoming more flushed with color. Mileena wrapped her arms around his chest, which to her surprise was heavily muscled. She continued to hold him, pressing herself up against him, she knew men loved her body, so she would use this to her advantage. While Justin was cooking, he could feel Mileena's breast against his back, this was causing him to stir a bit.

"Um, Miss Mileena can you please move, you're being quite distracting." He said, causing her to let go of him. No one has ever declined her touch, whether it be for pleasure or for her royalty status.

She finally managed to answer back, "There is no need for the 'Miss', only as Empress or Mileena, and you only get to call me that because you're saving me."

"Saving you? I mean I know I dressed your wounds and feeding you, I'm just being considerate."

Mileena took a step back, this human was different than the ones she has fought and killed. This one seemed to actually care about her well being, even if he managed to knock her out. She sat herself at the table and watched with interest. The man put various spices onto the meat and before too long was finished. He put the plate in front of her and she slowly lowered her veil in order to eat. Justin turned around and saw something that chilled his blood.

AN: I think this is a good point to stop, hopefully this story does just as well as my other one. Anyway, remember to review, follow, and favorite if you liked this story.

2. Chapter 2

AN: Thank you everyone for the favs and follows, compared to The Coiled Heart this story become more popular in the amount of time than my other. That is thanks to all of you that read my story, anyway you're here for the story, so here you go.

(I think I'm gonna keep this story in 3rd POV)

Justin looked at Mileena eating, "Hey! Use the fork and knife, don't just tear into it.", Mileena looked at him confused.

"Are you not scared of my teeth"

"No, I'm more scared of your tables manner, Empress or not, use the silverware"

Mileena hesitated for a moment, before picking up the fork and knife. Using them, she cut her steak into smaller pieces, growling at Justin. For some reason he seemed to possess an aura on him that frightened her. Whoever this man is, she would learn about his past, no matter what. Justin finished cooking his steak and sat across from Mileena, already angry with her mannerisms.

He looked up at her and finally decided to ask, "So why are your teeth like that, or is that just something from Outworld".

Mileena shook her head and looked down, "I was made by a sorcerer named Shang Tsung, he used the blood of my sister and the blood of the Tarkatan leader. There were many before me, but they didn't survive, only I did." Mileena finished off her plate and pushed it forward, "Well for a human, you're a good cook, I may just keep you alive for that."

Justin chuckles, "If that is supposed to scare me, then you have a long way to go. I've gone through too much in life to be scared by a woman with some sharp teeth."

"Oh, so I don't frighten you then? What do I do to you then?", she asked with a seductive look in her eyes.

"Truth be told you annoy me more than anything, especially with your entire act.", this caused Mileena to gasp.

"Well you repulse me with your human body."

"Empress if you looked in a mirror, you would know that you look pretty close to a human."

Mileena growled and got up from the table, heading back to the couch. She sat herself down and pouted to herself, it would be easier to just kill this man and feast on his corpse. However something kept her from doing so, she couldn't decide if it was because he saved her or what. Whatever it was she would figure it out, and hopefully find a way to get back her throne. She didn't realize she was deep in thought when Justin came and sat next to her, causing her to jump and snarl.

"Would you kindly announce your presence before seating yourself.", She snarled at him.

"I would, but this is my house, so no I'm not going to."

Mileena stared at him, how could a man like this just be comfortable around her. She was used to seeing people grovel to her feet, and beg for their lives. Justin has done neither of those, instead he felt no need to defend himself anymore. He knew she was indebted to him in some way, and with the way she acts she would reluctantly have to repay it. He wouldn't deny it, it was nice to have someone else in the house. He turned on the TV and changed the channel to a documentary about Outworld, causing Mileena to watch with curiosity. However after 10 minutes, she growled and asked for it to be turned off.

"What's wrong with you, are they saying the wrong things?", Justin asked Mileena.

"Of course they are saying false things, the throne belongs to me and not that Osh-Tekk fool."

"Well if that's true, then why not go and get it back?"

"What's the point, my rebellion is dead, anyone associated with me has probably fled farther into Outworld."

"So you have no home to go back to?"

Mileena shook her head and sighed, she knew if she were to return back to Outworld, then she would be killed. She had no army, and no more allies to help her, her only companion is the human sitting next to her. Justin looked at the woman next to him, she seemed defeated and lost of all purpose. People like this usually resort to ending themselves, but he couldn't let that happen. Justin stood up and went into the kitchen, he then set to work on something he hoped would help Mileena. After a few minutes he walked back to Mileena carrying a cup.

"Here try this and see if you like it.", Justin said as he offered the cup.

Mileena looked up at him and raised an eyebrow, "I may not be able to reclaim my throne, but I will not succumb to poison."

Justin rolled his eyes, "If I was trying poison you, I would've poisoned your steak. I'm just trying to cheer you up, so try shut up and drink.". He pushed the cup into her hands and watched her take a few sips.

"What is this, it's quite sweet?", Mileena licked her lips and continued to drink bit by bit.

"Nothing special, just some hot cocoa. I usually make some when I'm feeling down, which comes around a lot.".

"Why is that? From what I can see in your home, you seem to have a good life"

"One can think that, but life has thrown me into a ditch a few times, but that's something you shouldn't concern yourself with.".

Justin looked outside and saw that dark had arrived, "Well I guess it's time for bed, you can take the bed in my room.".

"Where will you sleep then, I saw no other beds when I looked in the house?"

"The couch of course, you're the guest so you get the more comfortable sleep area.".

Mileena shrugged and went into the bedroom, she saw the shower that was in the bathroom. After testing the water, she stripped off her uniform. She looked at the mirror, admiring her reflection, except for her mouth and eyes, she was almost exactly like her sister. Mileena growled a bit and shook her head, Kitana is dead, turned into a revenant by Quan Chi. She looked away from the mirror and stepped into the shower, feeling relief from the warm water running over naked body. She ran her hands down her body, feeling the cuts and wounds that had already healed over. She cut off the water and grabbed a towel, after drying herself off she went into the bedroom to see a set of clothes on the bed with a note.

'Mileena, these clothes will be more comfortable than what you had on. Have a good night sleep'

"What is with this human, how can he be so nice. That's it, tomorrow I'm going to repay that debt and leave."

Mileena slipped on the clothes she was given and smiled. Justin was right, these are more comfortable, she thought about how she could repay her debt. Finally she decided that the best way would be to seduce him and let him do what he wants to her. It wasn't her best decision, but it benefited her as well as Justin. After climbing into the bed, Mileena closed her eyes and fell asleep.

AN: If anyone is wondering, yes there will be lemon scenes, the earliest I can guarantee the first one will be in Ch 4. The next chapter will come out next week, or whenever I can get around to it.

End
file.